> The suggestions made as to amendments in the street opening law were a simplification of the present method by placing the maps and plans of the district under the control of the Board of Street Openings, and giving it the power to after and change as now possessed south of One-hundred and-fifty-fifn-st. The employment of an engineer who is to give professional advice as to such changes was also coatemplated; he to be the surveyor, who provides the rule, damage and assessment maps required for street openings. This amendment would place him in immediate contact with the Board of Street Openings, and would also save the present method of sending for maps and information to the Park Department through two or three different official channels, and making him, rogether with the Corporation Counsel's assistant officially allied with street matters subject to the command of one head. No definite action was taken on this branch of the subject, but it was understood that the suggestions, substantially as stated above, would be presented to the Senate Committee. the Senate Committee.
